ITS RELICS OF GEORGE WASHINGTON AND

"Paul Pry" has written to the Washingon Chronicle a very interesting letter about Washington Lodge, Alexandria, from which the following is taken:

fice is located an institution on the possession of which all of the local population justly pride themselves-this is the old Washington Lodge, No. 39, F. A. M., presided over by the immortal himself, and in whose honor it was named. Subsequently, however, the cession of Alexandria to the District rendered necessary a change in the title, and the old Masonic branch was rechristened as the Alexandria-Washington Lodge, No. 22. The first lodge-room-there are two of them-is called, I feel tempted to hazard, the Blue Chamber. The carpet in this long, spacious apartment, the curtains, the furniture finish-everything-is blue; and the sun-rays piercing those many shades, all closed, has the effect of dashing the entire room with a bluish air, at once novel and impressive. Here may be seen the chair of state which was occupied so often by Washington as the Grand Master of the lodge. and still retained in use; also, the gavel with which he ruled proceedings in the 'inner temple;" also, the two "lesser lights," belonging, of course, to the lodge, and carried in the funeral procession which escorted the remains of the immortal to their last resting place. same room fairly teems with relics of every description, and continues in the custody in the old lodge. Washington's chamber clock is here; it is a curious piece of mechanism, wrought by "George Med-hurst, London," and has its pendulum hung in the centre; still retained in its old condition, the hands yet point at the hour cuted when the distinguished was but twenty-two years of age, and presented to Washand the pictures of the members who constituted the lodge in 1804, all grouped in one frame; also a small likeness of Dr. E. C. Washington, Two cases, having glass doors, are located on the left side of the room, and contain the following array of relics, a grateful sight for the patriot of to-day (Centennial pilprims please take notice): A piece of Washington's coffin and coffin-cloth, bootstrap or garter; piece of Braddock's coat worn at the time of his death; Washington's wedding gloves; piece of his tent at Yorktown; stick of sealing-wax found in his escritoire, and last used by him; a box made of the wood of Shakspeare's famous mulberry tree, and under the branches whereof the bard delighted to sit and meditate: Washington's penknife, given him by his mother when he was twelve years of age, and kept by the great man until he was fifty-six; a cupping instrument belonging to Washington; his field compass; his field spurs; Masonic apron worked by Mrs. General Lafayette, and presented to Washington; a button of the kind fashionable at Washington's first inauguratian, in 1789;

In yet another mysterious chamber, whose Fairfax, who employed Washington as his Craik, surgeon-general of the Revolutionary war; a trio of letters, written by the immortal, and dated respectively Deeral transcriptions shall end this inventory. One of these is an admittance to a gentlethe eight of spades, proving that even in those days there were proficients in the handling of a deck. It reads:

Colonel William Townes, of the Roanoke Valley, were in the city yesterday. THE CIRCUS-TWO PLEASANT ENTERTAIN-

MENTS.—Yesterday was a grand day for all who are fond of the circus. Old John Robinson's immense pavilion-tents were literally thronged. Indeed, at the night performance the audience was pronounced to be the largest that Mr. Robinson has ever had on the occasion of any visit to this city. The street pageant in the morning was in Richmond, and it was but a forerunner of a most excellent circus performance. Every act is deserving of mention. Surely Lowlow, as a clown, is without a peer in the profession. Stickney, for grace, skill, and daring, is too well known to need comment. The pretty M'lle Tournour rides an act that pleases the public. She is a charming little lady, and her perilous acts in midair are really wonderful. Riley's performances pleases both old and young. The whole company is complete, and every artist worthy of praise. In fact, Old John Robin-in this city or State. The performances of Mr. Stickney were especially commendable, and the graceful manner in which he manipulated his little boy made people love the entire Stickney family. It was the first time that the little fellow had ever worn tights, and it was natural that he should feel proud. His feelings were prognosticated by his cool and courageous conduct while riding with his father. The riding of Mr. Stickney was wonderful. He managed the horse under which he and his dear little boy stood well; but when he came out by himself and rode and managed four horses the audience spontaneously yelled, and gave Mr. Stickney to understand that he was the man of the hour. The circus is a good one, and those who attend will leave satisfied that John Robinson knows how to keep a circus.

AN IRISH CONSERVATIVE CLUB.—Our Irish fellow-citizens, as will be seen from our advertising columns, will hold a mass-meeting on Tuesday evening of next week at the Virginia Opera-House for the purpose of forming an Irish Conservative club. Our Irish fellow-citizens do not feel the necessity of forming an Irish Conservative club except from the fact that the Radicals have Irish clubs which purport to represent the Celtic element of this city. these clubs do not number over fifty, and it is proposed to show on Tuesday night how the Irish and their descendants stand. "Mik-avoous, turn out! and by the power in good-will we'll show where we were born and where we exist!"

> UNQUALIFIED APPRECIATION. BOSTON, November 18, 1875 .-

Dear Sir,-During the past five years I have had ample opportunity to judge of the merit of VEGE- tained by the whites until ten Indians were TINE. My wife has used it for complaints attending killed or wounded, when the rest abandoned a lady of delicate health with more beneficial results than anything else which she ever tried. I have given it to my children under almost every circumstance attending a large family, and always with great benefit that I cannot find words to express my inqualified appreciation of its goodness.

While performing my duties as a police officer in this city it has been my lot to fall in with a great | terview with an old trapper named Ridgley, deal of sickness. I unhesitatingly recommend VEG-ETINE, and I never knew of a case where it did not prove all that was claimed for it. Particularly in cases of a debilitated or impoverished state of the blood its effects are really wonderful; and for all complaints arising from an impure state of the blood it appears to work like a charm, and I do not believe there are any circumstances under which VEGETINE can be used with injurious results, and it will always afford me pleasure to give any further nformation as to what I know about VEGETINE. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., September 8 .- The Pioneer Press and Tribune publishes an inwho was for a long time in the Yellowstone country, and claims to have witnessed the Custer massacre, being a prisoner in Sitting Bull's camp, and seeing every movement of the troops. He was taken prisoner last March, and was kept in the camp of the Indians ever since until the Custer massacre. He was kindly treated. He says Sitting Bull organized not to fight-the whites, but to drive the miners from the Hills. Previous to Custer's attack mounted couriers from Sitting Bull's camp had for eight days watched his (Custer's) forces, its division into small detachments being noted with manifestations of extreme delight. Ambuscades were immediately prepared, and while the Indians stood ready for an attack many of them clambered on the side of the hill overlooking Custer's line of march. The Indian camp was divided by a bluff, a point of which ran to and placed at the disposal of the Washingwards the Rosebud and in the direction of ton Government, which has demanded his one of the available fords of the river to extradition. the camp.
